

Refrigeration Air Conditioning Shopfitting

Bronze is our lowest recommended level of cover. The Bronze Plan includes preventative maintenance by a qualified engineer to ensure that your equipment is performing at optimal level, this can help reduce your electricity bills. It will also ensure that you are complying with the F-gas Regulations (see below). In the event of an emergency call out you will be charged separately. In addition to labour charges you will receive a separate quotation for the cost of any parts that may be required to get your equipment back up and running.

By choosing BRONZE you can rest assured that you are complying with the F-gas regulations and reducing your chances of a breakdown occurring in the future.

- ✓ Preventative maintenance visits
- ✓ Comprehensive engineers report stating overall condition
- ✓ 24 hr service assistance 365 days a year
- ✓ Priority response to emergencies
- ✓ Fully qualified personnel
- ✓ Free technical advice

Did you know that depending on the type of refrigeration equipment you use, you could be legally obliged to have it maintained by a qualified refrigeration engineer up to once every 6 months.

The European Union's F-gas Regulation No 842/2006 became law on 4 July 2006. This imposes obligations on "operators" of refrigeration and air conditioning equipment. F-gases include HFCs, which are the most common refrigerants in use today. The Regulation aims to minimise emissions of these gases, which affect global warming if they escape into the air. A maintenance agreement with Jordon Refrigeration will ensure that you are complying with these regulations through thorough checks of your F-gas equipment. For more information on the F-gas Regulations please ask for our leaflet "F-Gas Regulations and how they affect operators of Refrigeration & Air Conditioning Equipment".

CABINET REPAIRS AND THE CORRECTION OF DEFECTS OR DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE, FLOOD, FROST, VANDALISM OR MISUSE ARE EXCLUDED.
